The Psychobiological Effects of Trauma and Implications for Treatment

Presented by Janine M. D'Anniballe, Ph.D.

This presentation will be a combination of lecture and audience participation on the topic of trauma and its psychobiological effects. The presentation will begin with an exploration of the nature of traumatic events (such as sexual assault, domestic violence, and witnessing violence), and the difference between normal, situational, and traumatic stress. Next, physiological components of trauma will be introduced, such as brain structures and biochemistry, and the essence of phenomena such as dissociation, hypervigilance, and flashbacks will be explored. Finally, implications for treatment of psychological trauma will be discussed and current holistic interventions in mitigating the post-traumatic stress response will be presented.

Biography for Janine M. D'Anniballe, Ph.D.

Janine D'Anniballe has been dedicated to the prevention, treatment, and training of sexual assault issues for the past 18 years. Currently, she is the Director of Access, Emergency, and Community Services at Mental Health Partners in Boulder, Colorado. Previously, she was the Executive Director of Moving to End Sexual Assault (MESA), the rape crisis center in Boulder, Colorado for ten years. She received her Ph.D. in counseling and psychology from the University of Tennessee.

Dr. D'Anniballe has provided training and consultation to attorneys, law enforcement, military personnel, mental health professionals, victim advocates and University staff in more than 30 states across the country. She serves as a trainer for the Ending Violence Against Women Project for the State of Colorado, providing training throughout the state addressing system response issues in sexual assault cases. In 2003, Dr. D'Anniballe joined the faculty of the National Judicial Education Program that educates judges on sexual assault issues and how these cases are approached in the courtroom to minimize re-traumatization of victims without undermining defendants' constitutional rights. A licensed psychologist, Dr. D'Anniballe has a private consulting practice in Boulder with an emphasis on understanding and treating psychological trauma. In addition, she testifies as an expert witness in sexual assault cases throughout the state of Colorado.
